Timothy leads and manages the development strategy for national initiatives and five markets for Enterprise Community Partners, Inc. He has more than 20 years of nonprofit management and resource development experience with four nonprofit organizations. He has been at Enterprise Community Partners for the past 17 years.

In his previous position as the first director of marketing and development for the McColl Center for Visual Arts in Charlotte, North Carolina, Timothy oversaw the launching of a development and marketing program which included membership, major gifts solicitation and a successful $10 million endowment. Prior to McColl Center for Visual Arts, Timothy was the director of development and marketing for the Community School of the Arts where he implemented a comprehensive development program that included: board engagement, membership, major gifts, endowment campaign, government grants, events fundraising, sponsorship, individual giving and planned giving. Over his five-year tenure, he was able to more than triple the amount contributed dollars received for the organization. Timothy started his career with Colorado Special Olympics as a development associate, focusing his efforts on event fundraising and sponsorship.

Timothy is an active member of the Alliance for Biking and Walking and several local organizations in and around Columbia, Maryland.
