Joe Fusco is vice president and chief credit officer at Enterprise Housing Credit Investments, LLC, Enterprise's Low-Income Housing Tax Credit syndication business. He oversees credit review and policy for Housing Tax Credits and Conventional Equity investments. Joe was part of Enterprise's LIHTC syndication group from 2002 to 2006, acquiring, structuring, underwriting and closing transactions in a variety of markets.

In 2006, he worked for Fannie Mae's LIHTC business, where he reviewed potential transactions closing into proprietary funds managed by syndicators such as Enterprise and performed syndicator and fund assessments. Joe later transitioned to Fannie Mae's single-family real estate owned (REO) group, where he asset managed single-family rental property portfolios for optimization and disposition.

Just prior to rejoining Enterprise, he was a project manager at US Bank CDC, underwriting and closing LIHTC deals for direct investment. Joe has a professional background in community development and holds an MBA in Urban Planning Design and Development from Cleveland State University's Levin College of Urban Affairs and a bachelor's degree from Syracuse University.
