Description
A former streetcar repair facility in St. Louis was transformed into an environmentally smart business center. Green Park Broadway, located in the city's burgeoning North Riverfront Business Corridor, includes more than 95,000 square feet of green office and retail space with a multi-tenant service center. The extensive rehabilitation and expansion project was financed by New Markets Tax Credit (NMTC) investments from Enterprise. Green Park Broadway was leased to two tenants, Raben Tire of Evansville, Ind., and Goedecke Equipment Company of St. Louis.

A Green Advantage

Green Park Broadway, located near public transportation, incorporates green building practices that incorporate natural light, low toxicity and recycled materials, and water efficiency. The sponsor, Green Street Properties, focuses on sustainable commercial development in the St. Louis area, and plans to seek LEED certification for the project.

Investment Type

Enterprise used $11 million in NMTC allocation to finance Green Park Broadway. The loans featured flexible and non-traditional terms including lower-than-market-rate interest and longer-than-standard periods for interest-only payments. U.S. Bancorp Community Development Corporation was the NMTC equity investor. Green Park Broadway also leveraged debt provided by Pulaski Bank and equity from the project’s sponsor.

Market

Green Park Broadway is part of a larger planned redevelopment of 80 acres in the North Riverfront area, which has been targeted by the city of St. Louis for revitalization. Existing transportation infrastructure makes the area an advantageous location for suppliers, warehousing-distribution and manufacturing. Several major highways intersect near the area, and a new bridge will expand access to the neighborhood. The area qualifies as a highly-distressed community based on high poverty and unemployment rates, and is located with designated state and city areas zoned for redevelopment and improvement.

Community Impact

During construction, Green Park Broadway generated more than 100 construction and temporary jobs and after completion 40 new permanent jobs were created. The sponsors worked with the city’s employment agency, St. Louis Agency on Training and Employment (“SLATE”), to connect low-income job seekers with hiring managers of the companies that leased space in Green Park Broadway.
