As a senior program director in Enterprise's Mid-Atlantic Market, Joseph Williams manages the Faith-Based Development Initiative (FBDI) and the Transit-Oriented Development work.

During his tenure, FBDI has developed an expanded approach that places cohorts for Houses of Worship at the denominational and jurisdiction level that is supported by public and private funding. Currently there are more than 50 houses of worship in the Mid-Atlantic pipeline with an estimate of more than 3000 affordable housing units to come online in the next three years.

In addition, the FBDI has developed a fee for service platform that coordinates a platform for municipalities and houses of worship in coordination with Enterprise Advisors.

Joseph has more than 25 years of experience as a nonprofit executive, and he is an ordained minister with more than 37 years of experience with 27 years as a senior pastor. He is the author of Move the Needle and a forthcoming book Healing for R.A.S.H.E.K.A. due to be released later this fall.
